Lewis, Coal Industry Try For Pay Hike

Stabilizer's Decision Could Mean End To All Control Measures

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—John L. Lewis and the soft coal industry made a last ditch try Monday at getting the government to reverse its decision that granting a full $1.90 per day pay raise to miners is inflationary.

The case may involve the whole future of the wage control program. Also at stake is whether ceiling prices on coal, boosted Saturday to offset a $1.50 per day pay increase, will be hiked even further or whether coal miners strike.

Over the weekend the CIO called it quits on wage controls and said they might as well be abandoned. A top AFL leader also demanded that certain wage controls be dropped unless changes are made.

Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam summoned United Mine Workers President Lewis and industry spokesman Harry M. Moses to a hearing to give oral arguments explaining why they believe the full $1.90 per day raise negotiated for the coal miner should be approved.

The Wage Stabilization Board ruled Oct. 18 that anything more than $1.50 per day added pay for the miners "would damage our national effort to halt inflation." This meant the industry couldn't pay the full increase without facing possibly heavy financial penalty.

The WSB's ruling shaving 40 cents off their pay increase touched off an immediate strike by the nearly 350,000 soft coal miners. It lasted a week until, on Oct. 26, Lewis and Moses talked with President Truman in the White House. Truman promised that Putnam would give "serious and prompt consideration" to an appeal for the full pay increase.

Putnam faced a real dilemma. The WSB's industry members have warned that approving the full $1.90 raise would make a mockery of wage controls.

But the WSB's labor members argued that the miners should be allowed more money in wages in increases because other workers enjoy better vacation and other privileges than do the miners.

It was widely expected the miners would quit the pits again if Putnam went along with the WSB and didn't allow the full hike.

On the other hand, granting the full increase would almost certainly push the price of coal up again. The Office of Price Stabilization (Continued on Page Two)

Democrats Tell Donations To County Group

Pickaway County's Democratic executive committee reported contributions totalling $1,832 from 12 persons during the recent election campaign.

At the same time, the report, filed with the county board of elections, showed expenses totalling more than $1,414, leaving an estimated balance of $212.91.

Listed as contributors to the Democratic executive committee fund were: Joseph Brink, $100; Henry McCrady, $340; Clyde Mitchell, $115; Evan Ford, $100; James Mowery, $160; Robert Colville, $175; Guy Cline, $100; William Goode, $115; Ed Wallace, $100; Mrs. Florence Campbell, $236; Charles Radcliff, $130; and James Polk, $100.

Expenses were listed at $1,414.27, plus some outstanding bills.

REPORT of the Republican executive committee has not yet been filed.

Total expenses for individual candidates added to the list of those who have filed to date were: Mrs. Campbell, $239.25; Willson H. Leist, $188.75 (formerly listed at a lower, untallied figure); Henry McCrady, $62.27 (shows addition of new expense reported); and Guy Cline, $325.29.

27 Die In Ohio Weekend Mishaps

COLUMBUS, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Augmented by five hunting deaths as the season opened Saturday, the weekend figure of violent deaths in Ohio soared to at least 27.

Twenty lost their lives on the highways and two died in miscellaneous accidents.

AEC Admits 'H-Bomb' Research Test Included Recently On Eniwetok Atoll

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission has officially disclosed that hydrogen bomb "research" was included in a test of nuclear weapons at heavily guarded Eniwetok Atoll.

But the commission stood pat on its refusal to admit that an actual "hell" bomb had been exploded.

The commission, after issuing its terse announcement Sunday night, also spoke of possible prosecution for those who have written letters home about seeing what they described as the world's first H-bomb blast.

Dr. Harold C. Urey, Nobel Prize-winning scientist who was a key figure in the development of the atom bomb, said in Chicago he believed "the AEC announcement meant the United States has successfully exploded its first H-bomb."

Rep. Carl T. Durham (D-NC), chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, commented on the AEC announcement only by saying the "thermonuclear weapons research" at Eniwetok "came off on schedule."

HE WOULD NOT refer to the tests as hydrogen bomb experiments. However, "thermonuclear weapon research" is the scientists' way of designating work on an H-bomb.

In a formal announcement, AEC

Chairman Gordon Dean said only that the 1952 series of atomic weapons development tests had been concluded at Eniwetok Atoll; that the program included "experiments contributing to thermonuclear weapons research," and that the scientists "expressed satisfaction."

But what, reporters asked, about the swelling volume of letters coming back from ship crew members and others attached to the joint AEC-military task force which conducted the 1952 program?

The letters, widely published in the United States, described an explosion on Nov. 1 which, to them, seemed to transcend any previous man-made detonation.

They told of a mile-wide island melting away under the blast and awful heat, of a cloud column climbing twice as high as any known conventional atomic cloud, of damage to a building 18 miles away.

In a written answer to questions which had been accumulating on his desk, Dean said:

1. INFORMATION would be limited to that contained in the formal announcement "because any amplification might give aid to potential enemies." No further announcements will be made.

2. The commission is "concerned" over the letters.

3. "Investigations are underway leading to possible disciplinary action or prosecution for violation of

"NEVERTHELESS, in the office I hold I have been impressed many times—especially in recent months—by the way our early city planners fell far short in their calculations of Circleville's future needs.

"Not that we can blame them to any serious extent either, since anyone familiar with our local history knows how the mistakes could have been made in all sincerity. At the same time, I feel we should be more considerate and more broad-minded toward those saddled with the present job of steering the city's affairs.

"The unpopular fact to be faced—and one that not all of us like to support in public—is that Circleville long ago outgrew the actual and theoretical blueprints made for it. And that means, to go forward as we all claim we want to do, we're going to need more money for city improvements.

"It's certainly bad news for the taxpayer, I know. But I also want to emphasize that I'm one of them."

Gerhardt said his feelings on the matter were stirred anew in recent months by several developments (Continued on Page Two)

Kirkland said Fink was within his rights in claiming he might have incriminated himself by answering certain questions asked by the senators.

When Kirkland made his ruling, similar indictments were dropped against Abraham and Isadore Minkler, Reading, Pa., brothers, and their nephew, Lex Fudemann.

The unofficial box score for the last two years: 48 cited, 8 convicted, 29 acquitted or cases dismissed and 11 either not yet tried or cases not yet presented to the grand jury.

The problem is exceedingly difficult. If it is to legislate wisely, Congress needs all the information it can get. But the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution says no man can be forced to testify against himself. The Supreme Court says this applies to congressional hearings too.

When a witness balks, the committee then decides if it thinks he is in contempt. If the answer is yes, it asks the House or the Senate to back it up. When this is done, the Justice Department turns the case over to a grand jury.

A witness can use any reason he wishes for not talking. But if he says he's afraid he may incriminate himself, and says it to the right questions, the courts generally have agreed with him.

Electric Flogger Idea Suggested

SUTTON, England, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Housewives of this Midlands town want to bring back flogging, but with tender thoughts for the whip-wielders. They suggest that electric pushers handle the task.

A housewives' league told the district's member of Parliament that corporal punishment for criminals is necessary to end the recent wave of blackjack crimes. But said League Chairman Mrs. Dorothy Woodland, "surely scientists can devise something. If they can invent an electric chair, I am sure they could invent an electric flogger."

"IT WAS LUCKY for me that he did go into the house," Piano said, and added he didn't know the money was there.

Caldwell said Collier told him he later gave some money to neighbor youths, then took off last Thursday with Chupp for Memphis. They said they planned to buy a car there and go to California, and later Canada.

A jewelry store operator in nearby Farmington, Mo., from whom they bought watches, noticed the large amount of money they had and called authorities, who traced the boys. They have been held without charge.

Caldwell said the money, much of it still in bank wrappers, will remain in a Fredericktown bank until a thorough investigation has determined the rightful owner.

Piano, in Jonesville, said he and his wife lived in the now derelict house until her death about five years ago. He said he often would cash a check for $1,000 or $2,000, getting the cash wrapped in bank wrappers, about half of the money going to his wife for household expenses.

"I had no idea that she had saved any," he said. "She never said anything about it and after she died I just closed the house and moved in with my brother Tony."

task force regulations or the law" in connection with the letters.

Even before Dean's disclosure of the investigation, demands were beginning to appear in congressional quarters for an inquiry.

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio), member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, said he wanted to know if security had been violated.

Sunday, Bricker added that he had known all along that H-bomb (Continued on Page Two)

Ashville Man, 86, Killed By Train Engine

An 86-year-old Ashville man was killed Saturday afternoon when he stepped into the path of a south-bound Norfolk and Western Railway engine in Ashville.

He was James Willard Hott, struck by the engine as he was walking east across the N and W crossing at Madison avenue in the village.

Eye-witnesses to the scene were Austin Collins and Donald Hutchinson, both of Ashville.

The pair said Hott was walking east, when he was on the tracks, turned around and saw the oncoming engine.

COLLINS and Hutchinson told Deputy Jim Diltz the force of impact tossed Hott about 20 feet before he struck the ground.

Dr. Ned Griner said Hott died of a fractured skull.

Mr. Hott was born March 1, 1866, in Scioto Township, son of Adam and Elizabeth Cloud Hott. He was a retired farmer.

Surviving him is his widow, Georgia Faye Hott; two sons, Earl Hott of Scioto Township and Ashnell Hott at home; a daughter, Mrs. John Keller, of Ashville Route 2; seven grandchildren; and four great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the residence with the Rev. A. B. Albertson officiating. Burial will be in Darbyville cemetery by direction of Bastian Funeral Home.

Friends may call in the residence.

IN THIS and other cases over the weekend, hunters guilty of game law violations were fined a total of $335 and costs in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root.

Francis said the pushing incident took place on a township road near the Darbyville road after he was called to investigate a group of men hunting by the lights of an automobile.

The game protector said he was talking to the group with the door of the car open when the driver suddenly leaned over and shoved Francis into a ditch, causing painful back injuries.

Francis was to have consulted a physician later.

He said the car, a 1950 Chevrolet sedan of black or dark blue color, was driven away before he could note any but a few details.

A newspaper had been wrapped around the license plates, he said, and the driver, dark complexioned, appeared to be about 35. He was wearing an ordinary brown hunting outfit, the game protector reported.

Meanwhile, N. J. Wenzel, Ross County game protector, and Herman Davis, game protector of Pike County, told of the alleged bribe story.

Ike Gets Strange Array Of Gifts

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—When President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower arrives here Tuesday he will have to decide what to do with:

A live goose, a pair of baby-blue undershorts decorated with white elephants, gold golf tees, fishing flies, a white pigeon, two cans of grubs for fishing, a horseshoe once worn by Kentucky Derby winner Citation, and socks knitted with an "I like Ike" pattern. These items are among the many gifts arriving here in daily floods at Eisenhower's residence. There is also a pile of 35,000 letters and telegrams.

Ex-Hillsboro Mayor Dies Unexpectedly

HILLSBORO, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Dr. J. Wilbur Harold, 46, who served as mayor of Hillsboro in 1948 and 1949, died unexpectedly here Monday.

He had been a practicing dentist for 23 years, served with the 37th Division in the South Pacific in World War II.

STUNNED BY IMMENSITY of the tragedy that has struck his home in Westport, Mass., Aladdin Audette, 47, (top, center) is shown with his daughter, Dolores, 19, and son Daniel, 12, after a flash fire had swept through the family home, claiming his wife and their eight youngest children. Local Game Protector Injured; Search On For Three Hunters

A widening search was under way Monday for hunters who caused undetermined injuries to a local game protector in one of more than a dozen cases brought to the attention of enforcement men last week-end.

Clarence Francis, Pickaway County game protector, suffered a back injury when shoved into a ditch while questioning a group of hunters between Derby and Darbyville. The incident happened about 4:45 a. m. Monday.

Three hunters rode from the scene in an automobile after the driver had pushed Francis into the roadside gully.

Other game protectors meanwhile announced a hunter was forced to admit spreading a falsehood after allegedly claiming he had bribed the officers.

Returning to the scene in southern Pickaway County near the Ross County line, officials said they found Seymour and he admitted the bribe story was false.

In Magistrate Root's office, Seymour was fined $100 and costs on the original violation. He also signed an affidavit, the magistrate's office said, admitting he had tried to instigate a false rumor against the game protectors.

Other cases handled last week-end and Monday morning by the magistrate were as follows:

WILLIAM YATES, 45, of Columbus, was fined $100 and costs Saturday for taking a hen pheasant. Yates was also fined $10 and costs for hunting without written permission on the farm of H. M. Crites. The accusation was filed by Crites.

Crites also filed similar accusations against Joe Rife, 29; Chester F. White, 27; Stanley Mackzun, 40; Richard W. McDonough, 21; Robert W. McDonough, 35, and Claude Crum, 28. Rife and White live in Columbus. Others in the group are residents of Cincinnati.

Each of the six was fined $10 and costs.

Ed Andrix, 28, and George W. Andrix, 31, both of Columbus, were fined $10 and costs for hunting without permission on the Charles Reiger farm.

Milburn Earl Grigsby, 31, of Williamsport Route 2, was fined $15 and costs for hunting before legal hours.

All the above cases were handled Saturday.

Aside from the Seymour case, in which the arrest was made by Wenzel, the arrests were by Francis, Game Protector Bob Wheeler and Ray Hughes.

Pearley Kuhn, 68, Logan street, and Cletus Kuhn, 25, Clinton street, were each fined $15 and costs Monday for hunting before hours. Arrests were by Game Protector T. W. Overholzer, who took the two into custody south of Circleville.

Gala Welcome Is Scheduled For Tuesday

Statement On Unity Expected To Come Out Of White House Talks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The nation's capital, decked out and in a gay mood, is awaiting the arrival of President-elect Dwight Eisenhower Tuesday and his historic conference with outgoing President Truman.

Washington is planning a rousing welcome for Eisenhower who is scheduled to arrive about 1:20 p. m. Tuesday by plane from his vacation spot in Augusta, Ga.

A MAMMOTH parade is scheduled to move from Lincoln Memorial down Constitution Avenue, past the Washington Monument, then back out Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House.

The major television networks are pooling their equipment and millions of Americans in the hinterland will watch the President-elect from the time he lands at National Airport to his date in the White House.

Congressional leaders expect Eisenhower and Truman to agree at their conference on a statement telling the world America is united in its quest for peace.

The first meeting in months of Truman and the man who will succeed him brings together two historic figures who once worked as a team on foreign problems, but who used harsh words to describe each other's views during the presidential campaign.

For this reason, some leaders in Congress said they believe a joint statement is clearly needed to reassure the free world there is no deep-seated division over U. S. foreign policies.

Eisenhower promised during the campaign to make Democrats "real partners" in working out basic foreign policies. Tuesday's (Continued on Page Two)

Sabres Clip 5 Migs Over North Korea

SEOUL, Nov. 17.—(AP)—U. S. Sabrejets Monday shot down at least five Communist Mig-15s over Northwest Korea. The U. S. Fifth Air Force reported the series of air battles produced the 21st American jet ace of the Korean war.

A sixth destruction claim is pending confirmation. In addition, one Mig was listed as probably destroyed and one damaged. Allied losses, if any, were not announced.

The new ace is Col. Royal Baker of McKinney, Tex. He got one Mig Monday to raise his total to five Migs and one LA-9 propeller-driven fighter destroyed.

Along the ground, Red Chinese artillery threw a thunderous hour-long barrage at blood-soaked Pinpoint Hill and Rocky Mount. It may have been a prelude to an after-dark Communist assault.

Allied artillery roared in answer as United Nations forces sought out the big Red guns which were dropping a hail of exploding steel on Allied positions in the Sniper Ridge sector of the Central Front.

The artillery duel shook the entire Kumhwa Valley.

Communist guns started slamming 1,200 shells an hour at the entrenched South Korean defenders at 11 a. m. The barrage continued as night fell.

American officers said they observed considerable Red troop movement in the valley at the northern end of Sniper Ridge, from where Communists have launched previous night infantry attacks against Pinpoint and Rocky Point.

The terrific artillery duel broke a short-lived lull all along the bleak, shell-pocked 155-mile battlefront, hit today by freezing cold and snow.

15-Year-Old Boy Wounded In Leg

Only one incident was reported Saturday in Pickaway County to mar the opening of the 1952 rabbit and pheasant hunting season.

That was the wounding of a 15-year-old Columbus boy who was hunting with friends near Duvall.

The youngster, identified as Jack J. Moore, was accidentally shot in the leg by a companion at about 10:30 a. m. Saturday.

Pickaway County sheriff's office said the youth was rushed into Columbus, where an operation was held in an effort to save the lad's leg.

Greek Voters Pick Military Hero As Chief

ATHENS, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Greek voters in parliamentary elections Sunday overwhelmingly picked Field Marshal Alexander Papagos, the country's stern, tough military hero, to head their government.

With 83 per cent of the votes counted, Papagos' rightwing Greek Rally was leading in races for 235 of the legislative body's 300 seats. It promised him the greatest parliamentary majority won by any one faction since Eleutherio Venizelos' Liberal triumph in 1928.

The caretaker government of Premier Dimitrios Kessigopoulos announced it would resign Tuesday. King Paul then was expected to give a mandate to the 68-year-old Papagos to form a new cabinet.

American officials had maintained an official "hands off" toward the election campaign, but it was an open secret that U. S. authorities felt a Papagos victory would help stabilize this poverty-stricken country, which has received more than $2 billion in American economic and military aid since World War II.

Until now, the Americans, since assuming the burden of Greek aid in 1947, had hoped in vain for a one-party government with a parliamentary majority big enough to enact necessary legislation. Papagos was expected to give the Americans full cooperation, but it was quite evident the colorful fighter would not be a "yes man."

The first meeting in months of Truman and the man who will succeed him brings together two historic figures who once worked as a team on foreign problems, but who used harsh words to describe each other's views during the presidential campaign.

For this reason, some leaders in Congress said they believe a joint statement is clearly needed to reassure the free world there is no deep-seated division over U. S. foreign policies.

Eisenhower promised during the campaign to make Democrats "real partners" in working out basic foreign policies. Tuesday's (Continued on Page Two)

Sabres Clip 5 Migs Over North Korea

SEOUL, Nov. 17.—(AP)—U. S. Sabrejets Monday shot down at least five Communist Mig-15s over Northwest Korea. The U. S. Fifth Air Force reported the series of air battles produced the 21st American jet ace of the Korean war.

A sixth destruction claim is pending confirmation. In addition, one Mig was listed as probably destroyed and one damaged. Allied losses, if any, were not announced.

The new ace is Col. Royal Baker of McKinney, Tex. He got one Mig Monday to raise his total to five Migs and one LA-9 propeller-driven fighter destroyed.

Along the ground, Red Chinese artillery threw a thunderous hour-long barrage at blood-soaked Pinpoint Hill and Rocky Mount. It may have been a prelude to an after-dark Communist assault.

Allied artillery roared in answer as United Nations forces sought out the big Red guns which were dropping a hail of exploding steel on Allied positions in the Sniper Ridge sector of the Central Front.

The artillery duel shook the entire Kumhwa Valley.

Communist guns started slamming 1,200 shells an hour at the entrenched South Korean defenders at 11 a. m. The barrage continued as night fell.

American officers said they observed considerable Red troop movement in the valley at the northern end of Sniper Ridge, from where Communists have launched previous night infantry attacks against Pinpoint and Rocky Point.

The terrific artillery duel broke a short-lived lull all along the bleak, shell-pocked 155-mile battlefield, hit today by freezing cold and snow.

15-Year-Old Boy Wounded In Leg

Only one incident was reported Saturday in Pickaway County to mark the opening of the 1952 rabbit and pheasant hunting season.

That was the wounding of a 15-year-old Columbus boy who was hunting with friends near Duvall.

The youngster, identified as Jack J. Moore, was accidentally shot in the leg by a companion at about 10:30 a. m. Saturday.

Pickaway County sheriff's office said the youth was rushed into Columbus, where an operation was held in an effort to save the lad's leg.

Gerhardt Says City Councilmen Taking Blame For Bad Planning

City Solicitor George Gerhardt, sitting at the nerve center of Circleville's legal problems, declared Monday that "maybe it's about time somebody had a good word to say for the present city councilmen."

Gerhardt said he's convinced the lawmakers, to a considerable degree, "are taking the rap for those who long ago felt the city would never really amount to much."

Many of the current municipal problems, he said, can be traced directly or indirectly to a lack of vision upon the part of generations now past.

"And the squeeze," he added, "is largely upon those who are called upon to adjust those old, inadequate estimates of former years to the expanding promise of Circleville's present times."

"I am not posing as a spokesman for the city's councilmen," he said. "I feel they are able to do their own talking when they feel like it, either as individuals or as a group."

"NEVERTHELESS, in the office I hold I have been impressed many times—especially in recent months—by the way our early city planners fell far short in their calculations of Circleville's future needs.

"Not that we can blame them to any serious extent either, since anyone familiar with our local history knows how the mistakes could have been made in all sincerity. At the same time, I feel we should be more considerate and more broad-minded toward those saddled with the present job of steering the city's affairs.

"The unpopular fact to be faced—and one that not all of us like to support in public—is that Circleville long ago outgrew the actual and theoretical blueprints made for it. And that means, to go forward as we all claim we want to do, we're going to need more money for city improvements.

"It's certainly bad news for the taxpayer, I know. But I also want to emphasize that I'm one of them."

Gerhardt said his feelings on the matter were stirred anew in recent months by several developments (Continued on Page Two)

Norway Princess Due In Florida

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Crown Princess Martha of Norway and her daughters, Princesses Ragnhild and Astrid, are here on their way to Florida for a vacation.

Princess Martha, who has been ill, and her daughters arrived by plane from Oslo Sunday. She will spend a month at the Palm Beach home of Charles Ulrich Bay, U. S. ambassador to Norway.

Lad Finds $15,000, Starts Out On Trip To See Country

FREDERICKTOWN, Mo., Nov. 17.—(AP)—A 15-year-old boy, interrupted in a planned journey around the country, Sunday told how he found a $15,000 bottle.

Gerald Marcel Collier of Jonesville, Ill., and a companion, John Chupp, 17, of Lasalle, Ill., were taken from a Memphis-bound bus Saturday by Missouri Highway Patrolman R. C. Caldwell.

The boys had $14,132 with them, Caldwell said, and told of another $1,000 hidden in a sewer near their home. Part of the latter amount has been recovered by Lasalle authorities who are coming for the boys. Caldwell said young Collier told this story:

He went to an abandoned house near Jonesville early this month to find a hidden bottle of whisky. While there he saw a hole leading to the attic, so he climbed up. He found a metal box with the money inside.

Joseph Piano, owner of the house, said Sunday he had no ill feeling toward young Collier.

"IT WAS LUCKY for me that he did go into the house," Piano said, and added he didn't know the money was there.

Caldwell said Collier told him he later gave some money to neighbor youths, then took off last Thursday with Chupp for Memphis. They said they planned to buy a car there and go to California, and later Canada.

A jewelry store operator in nearby Farmington, Mo., from whom they bought watches, noticed the large amount of money they had and called authorities, who traced the boys. They have been held without charge.

Caldwell said the money, much of it still in bank wrappers, will remain in a Fredericktown bank until a thorough investigation has determined the rightful owner.

Piano, in Jonesville, said he and his wife lived in the now derelict house until her death about five years ago. He said he often would cash a check for $1,000 or $2,000, getting the cash wrapped in bank wrappers, about half of the money going to his wife for household expenses.

"I had no idea that she had saved any," he said. "She never said anything about it and after she died I just closed the house and moved in with my brother Tony."

Electric Flogger Idea Suggested

SUTTON, England, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Housewives of this Midlands town want to bring back flogging, but with tender thoughts for the whip-wielders. They suggest that electric punishers handle the task.

A housewives' league told the district's member of Parliament that corporal punishment for criminals is necessary to end the recent wave of blackjack crimes. But said League Chairman Mrs. Dorothy Woodland, "surely scientists can devise something. If they can invent an electric chair, I am sure they could invent an electric flogger."

27 Die In Ohio Weekend Mishaps

COLUMBUS, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Augmented by five hunting deaths as the season opened Saturday, the weekend figure of violent deaths in Ohio soared to at least 27.

Twenty lost their lives on the highways and two died in miscellaneous accidents.

that underlined the city's inadequate facilities.

He pointed to the special efforts that were necessary to keep the city's water system up to modern standards and the "urgent request for additional funds for sewer improvements—turned down by such a narrow margin in the recent election."

HE ALSO called attention to the local highway problems, the restless search for better city government evident in the charter proposal and the continued touch-and-go balance in the municipal funds.

"I'm not taking a stand one way or another on any of the particular issues that have been before the city or are yet to be decided," he said. "All I'm doing is saying they're signs of a deeper problem than many of us seem to realize."

"They're symptoms of the fact that Circleville is bursting at the seams. And whether we tackle the whole problem head-on with some fair and unbiased action depends entirely upon what kind of a community we want Circleville to be."

"With the end of 1952 approaching, it may be the appropriate time to drag this whole picture out into the open, and meanwhile recognize the fact that city council is on the spot for many things which it had nothing to do."

Gerhardt did not offer any master plan to meet the situation he described.

"How can I?" he asked. "It's something for all of us to solve. It isn't something that can be dumped into the laps of the Republicans or Democrats, or this individual or that faction."

"It isn't something that can be solved by some single line of action. It's a case of the whole community coming to realize that we're steadily growing. And that it isn't fair to look back, claim a list of errors in the past, and then demand that council produce some magic solution for it all."

AMONG EXAMPLES of inadequate planning by former generations of public officials here, Gerhardt cited the era in which residents had their own private sewer systems built because the community facilities were insufficient.

He pointed to sewer constructions that indicated the early town fathers figured the city limits far inside the present corporation line.

With particular reference to the current controversy over the Route 23 bypass offered by the state, Gerhardt also referred to "many of our side streets which can't stand up to a full weight of modern traffic"—and to Court street itself "which wide as it is in comparison to other community thoroughfares still isn't wide enough."

"The frequency with which such problems are coming before the local public in serious proportions," he said, "should be the tip-off. We're either going to grow or stay a small town, and it looks as though the time for decision is at hand."

research was included in the Eniwetok weapons test, but said he was in no position to know if an H-bomb was exploded. Bricker also contrasted the secrecy surrounding current tests with the open door policy of the 1946 Bikini atomic test.

The Atomic Energy Act carries the stiffest of penalties for violations of security—including death, life imprisonment, 20 years imprisonment or $20,000 fine or both.

BUT LIKE provisions of other federal law, courts must prove that a violation was made with "intent to injure the United States or with intent to secure an advantage to any foreign nation."

Letters which have appeared so far seem to be of the ordinary letter-to-home type, telling in an awed and gee-whiz manner of an amazing spectacle.

The danger could be that the letters, if accurate, contain unintentional tidbits of scientific information of major value in guessing how good the United States' newest and mightiest weapon is.

The act says it "shall be the policy of the commission to control the dissemination of restricted data in such manner as to assure the common defense and security."

Presumably it is under this broad provision that the "task force regulations" mentioned by Dean were set up. Disciplinary action, not necessarily involving prosecution, could be taken under such regulations.

The Justice Department was reported to be looking into the matter of the H-bomb letters. However, officials declined to comment either on the writing of the descriptions or their publication.

Two-Week CROP Drive Underway

A two-week campaign by workers for CROP began Monday in Pickaway County.

Solicitors in each township of the county began calling upon all local farmers Monday seeking donations of grain for the Christian Rural Overseas Program.

Goal for the local campaign has been set at one car-load of grain for the 1952 Friendship Train.

Local farmers will be asked during the drive to designate a portion of their crops to the CROP collection, which will be sent overseas to benefit hungry families there.

Township workers will give the farmers receipts for their contributions, with duplicate receipts to be sent to Larry Best, Lloyd Minor or the Rev. Donald Mitchell.

Lewis, Coal Industry Try For Pay Hike

boosted ceiling prices Friday as high as 75 cents per ton on soft coal and $1.35 per ton on Pennsylvania hard coal.

OPS OFFICIALS said if the miners win the full $1.90 increase they want, an additional ceiling price boost of around 15 cents per ton for hard coal and 39 to 42 cents for soft coal may be expected.

The soft coal miners have been working since Oct. 27 at the $1.50 figure, bringing their basic pay to $17.85 per day, with assurances from the industry that when and if the government approves the remaining 40 cents per day, the miners will get that retroactively.

This is the same arrangement under which about 65,000 hard coal miners are working. Beginning Monday, they are to get a temporary $1.50 per day increase, on the average, and 40 cents per day more if the remainder is approved by the CIO.

The CIO's call for an end of wage controls, which expire next April 30 unless Congress extends them, came in a report released over the weekend. It was authored by CIO President Philip Murray before his recent death.

meeting, designed to aid an orderly transition from the Democratic to the Republican regimes, will be regarded by some as the first test of his intentions.

THE PRESIDENT-elect already has said he will not share in nor assume responsibility for any administration decisions before he is formally inaugurated Jan. 20.

For this reason, few expect him to do more than listen to a briefing on the international and domestic situation.

Officials familiar with plans for the meetings said Truman's primary purpose in suggesting them was to make certain Eisenhower is informed of major world problems, and how the present administration intends to deal with them.

These officials believe the sessions will cover several other points of importance:

1. Eisenhower probably will be given a fill-in on hydrogen bomb progress. The Atomic Energy Commission late Sunday said H-bomb "research" was included in a new weapons test program at Eniwetok Atoll, but its carefully phrased announcement did not say such a bomb had been exploded.

2. Truman may urge Eisenhower to name top cabinet members dealing with foreign and security problems—State, Defense and Treasury—within two weeks and ask them to work with present officials to "learn the ropes."

3. THE administration is expected to tell Eisenhower and his advisers that a statement by him on the Korean situation, endorsing the present policy of insisting on voluntary repatriation of prisoners of war in any armistice agreement, would greatly strengthen current dealings at the UN General Assembly.

4. Eisenhower will be given a chance to express his views on foreign policy and asked for comments on administration intentions as they are explained to him. Highly placed officials said Truman will take Eisenhower's views into consideration in making decisions between now and Jan. 20.

According to present plans, Truman and Eisenhower will hold two White House meetings. They will meet first in private.

From the private session they plan to go immediately to the Cab-

On Wednesday, Eisenhower will meet in New York with a quartet of Republicans who will have key roles in the GOP-controlled 83rd Congress, convening Jan. 3.

In Manhattan, the general will confer first with Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, and Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, slated to be speaker of the House. They will discuss plans for a legislative program.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

The most world shaking event humanity has recorded is the birth of a child. All time is recognized from that event, yet there was no room at the inn! Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea... behold there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews, for we have seen his star in the east and are come to worship him.—Matt. 11:1-2.

Drunken Driver Fined And Jailed

Paul Johnson, 30, of Columbus, was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to five days in jail by the court of Mayor Ed Amey last week-end for drunken driving.

Johnson was arrested on North Court street by Officer Mack Wise.

research was included in the Eniwetok weapons test, but said he was in no position to know if an H-bomb was exploded. Bricker also contrasted the secrecy surrounding current tests with the open door policy of the 1946 Bikini atomic test.

The Atomic Energy Act carries the stiffest of penalties for violations of security—including death, life imprisonment, 20 years imprisonment or $20,000 fine or both.

BUT LIKE provisions of other federal law, courts must prove that a violation was made with "intent to injure the United States or with intent to secure an advantage to any foreign nation."

Letters which have appeared so far seem to be of the ordinary letter-to-home type, telling in an awed and gee-whiz manner of an amazing spectacle.

The danger could be that the letters, if accurate, contain unintentional tidbits of scientific information of major value in guessing how good the United States' newest and mightiest weapon is.

The act says it "shall be the policy of the commission to control the dissemination of restricted data in such manner as to assure the common defense and security."

Presumably it is under this broad provision that the "task force regulations" mentioned by Dean were set up. Disciplinary action, not necessarily involving prosecution, could be taken under such regulations.

The Justice Department was reported to be looking into the matter of the H-bomb letters. However, officials declined to comment either on the writing of the descriptions or their publication.

Two Men Heard For 'Assault'

Two men were heard before the court of Mayor Ed Amey last week-end on accusations of assault and battery, one of them being fined and the other held for grand jury action.

Fined was Merle Ankrom, 32, formerly of Circleville and now of Columbus. Ankrom was fined $25 and costs for assault and battery filed by his former wife.

Two-Week CROP Drive Underway

A two-week campaign by workers for CROP began Monday in Pickaway County.

Solicitors in each township of the county began calling upon all local farmers Monday seeking donations of grain for the Christian Rural Overseas Program.

Goal for the local campaign has been set at one car-load of grain for the 1952 Friendship Train.

Local farmers will be asked during the drive to designate a portion of their crops to the CROP collection, which will be sent overseas to benefit hungry families there.

Township workers will give the farmers receipts for their contributions, with duplicate receipts to be sent to Larry Best, Lloyd Minor or the Rev. Donald Mitchell.

Lewis, Coal Industry Try For Pay Hike

boosted ceiling prices Friday as high as 75 cents per ton on soft coal and $1.35 per ton on Pennsylvania hard coal.

OPS OFFICIALS said if the miners win the full $1.90 increase they want, an additional ceiling price boost of around 15 cents per ton for hard coal and 39 to 42 cents for soft coal may be expected.

The soft coal miners have been working since Oct. 27 at the $1.50 figure, bringing their basic pay to $17.85 per day, with assurances from the industry that when and if the government approves the remaining 40 cents per day, the miners will get that retroactively.

This is the same arrangement under which about 65,000 hard coal miners are working. Beginning Monday, they are to get a temporary $1.50 per day increase, on the average, and 40 cents per day more if the remainder is approved by the WSB.

Four Persons Injured In Eight Auto Crashes Here Last Weekend

Four persons were injured in a series of eight auto accidents last weekend in Pickaway County.

First of the personal injury crashes happened at about 9 a. m. Saturday on the Gulick Road, about four miles north of Darbyville.

Deputy Jim Diltz said autos operated by Frank Hall Jr., 29, of Columbus and Pearl Woolever, 54, of Orient Route 1, collided with the left front end of each car striking the other.

Injured was Mrs. Woolever, driver, who reportedly suffered fractured ribs.

Second of the mishaps was at 9:15 a. m. Saturday on Route 56, just east of Circleville.

OTTO HARTMAN, 67, of London, told Deputy Diltz he had applied the brakes of his car on the wet pavement to stop for a pickup truck in front of him.

Hartman's car skidded on the wet pavement, plunging to the right through a guardrail and overturning in the bed of Hominny Creek. Hartman suffered an injured left shoulder.

Next of the crashes was at 2 a. m. Sunday on Route 22 just east of Circleville, when an auto operated by Thelma Rentsch, 25, of Uhrichsville, went out of control.

The driver told Diltz she had been passing a truck when the steering wheel of her car locked. The auto plunged to the left into a ditch and overturned into a field.

The car was a total loss. Injured was Benny Rentsch, 24, husband of the driver, who suffered an injured right shoulder.

Final personal injury accident here last weekend happened at about 7:45 a. m. Sunday on Route 22 just east of Williamsport.

Deputy Walter Richards said Charles Morris, 21, of Morris Hill, Ind., fell asleep at the wheel of his auto. The auto plunged from the highway, with Morris suffering a back injury and rib fractures.

meeting, designed to aid an orderly transition from the Democratic to the Republican regimes, will be regarded by some as the first test of his intentions.

THE PRESIDENT-elect already has said he will not share in nor assume responsibility for any administration decisions before he is formally inaugurated Jan. 20.

For this reason, few expect him to do more than listen to a briefing on the international and domestic situation.

Officials familiar with plans for the meetings said Truman's primary purpose in suggesting them was to make certain Eisenhower is informed of major world problems, and how the present administration intends to deal with them.

These officials believe the sessions will cover several other points of importance:

1. Eisenhower probably will be given a fill-in on hydrogen bomb progress. The Atomic Energy Commission late Sunday said H-bomb "research" was included in a new weapons test program at Eniwetok Atoll, but its carefully phrased announcement did not say such a bomb had been exploded.

2. Truman may urge Eisenhower to name top cabinet members dealing with foreign and security problems—State, Defense and Treasury—within two weeks and get them to work with present officials to "learn the ropes."

3. THE administration is expected to tell Eisenhower and his advisers that a statement by him on the Korean situation, endorsing the present policy of insisting on voluntary repatriation of prisoners of war in any armistice agreement, would greatly strengthen current dealings at the UN General Assembly.

4. Eisenhower will be given a chance to express his views on foreign policy and asked for comments on administration intentions as they are explained to him. Highly placed officials said Truman will take Eisenhower's views into consideration in making decisions between now and Jan. 20.

According to present plans, Truman and Eisenhower will hold two White House meetings. They will meet first in private.

From the private session they plan to go immediately to the Cabinet Room and join a second and larger session with their advisers.

On Wednesday, Eisenhower will meet in New York with a quartet of Republicans who will have key role in the GOP-controlled 83rd Congress, convening Jan. 3.

In Manhattan, the general will confer first with Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, and Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, slated to be speaker of the House. They will discuss plans for a legislative program.

Humans Always Fear Tomorrows, Recall Instead Safe Yesterdays

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Here is a poor philosopher's summation of what he found in his native land after a brief trip to troubled Europe. How are they linked, these separated yet joined residents of Milan and Minneapolis, Rocky Mount and Rome?

This is a mystic period when Moscow, where Joe Stalin has his headquarters, and Mount Vernon, N. Y., where a lot of suburbanites have their children, try to go on regarding themselves as civic centers rather than the guinea pig communities of the future—the potential targets of the H-bomb.

I find at home and abroad a disturbing trend, a homesickness for the past. Too many people want to live in the world of yesterday. Instead of hopefully planning what lies ahead they want to sit and view what is bygone through the beautiful fog of time.

This is a helluva lot of fun, sitting and reviewing old mistakes and antique problems. But one tends to dwell too much upon old victories, often more imagined than actual.

What the times cry for now are fresh and bold decisions upon the problems of today, not the fading triumphs and defeats of yesterday.

To be alive in this tremendous moment too often afflicts the young with a sense of duty, the middle-aged and elderly with a sense of worry. Both lift a tired shoulder.

Of course, what everybody wants is the wonderful world of yesterday. This is the safe area of reminiscence, the small corner of the past where anybody can remember he had it better than he does now, and make himself a hero of villain at will.

The deadly thing about it is that everyone feels the same way about it a little bit. The German in Berlin, the Frenchman on a farm near Verdun, the Belgian hotel keeper at Spa, the Italian wine grower in the Alban hills, the lonely Spanish shepherd, the weary clerk in an American business office—each day dreams of the days gone by. The escape hatch of the past—everyone can find a way out of responsibility through it.

But today is the day of adventure—it must always be today or tomorrow. Who can deny that each fresh dawn may unveil a poem above price, open a brave new world where man and atom may explore each other in peace, and the cost of bread falls so low there will be a loaf for every lip?

The sea of ignorance waves at and threatens our island of knowledge, so small and isolated a haven. Mankind yearns on an atoll—and there are continents yet to discover, or drown trying to reach.

But it is so much easier to feel sorry for yourself than it is to be an explorer in this life, whether you search by heart or seek by microscope.

The human race sighs at this peak moment of history for rest after a series of world wide and exhausting wars and business crises. Around the world men wonder:

"Is life worth while? Oh where are we drifting?"

I suppose that since the morn of meaning this query has plagued thoughtful men each day on awakening from the sanctuary of slumber.

Just before a certain night lifted back in 1492 and showed an island outpost of America, Christopher Columbus probably brooded:

"What am I doing here? I'm probably making the biggest mistake of my life."

During the last decade, the number of U. S. families increased from approximately 32 million to 40 million.

Elimor Williams' Teen Tips

Sitting near some high schoolers in the movies can be a grim experience. You'll never be popular without civilized movie manners. Nobody likes—

1. Boys and girls who sprawl all over three or four seats instead of sitting in one as they're supposed to.
2. The girl who tosses her coat on the back of somebody else's seat and leaves it there.
3. Boys who guffaw loudly and rudely at the wrong time during a tense, dramatic or romantic scene of the picture.
4. The girl and boy whose affectionate her-head-on-his-shoulder position completely hides the screen from the view of unlucky people sitting behind them.
5. Girls and boys who talk, laugh, chew or rattle paper so loudly that you miss the dialogue of the film and don't know what it's all about. For good movie manners:

1. Be quiet, speaking only in a whisper when necessary.
2. Skip any display of affection in theaters. Nobody objects to seeing a little hand-holding if your date is No. 1 on your heart parade, but if you're a girl, don't put your head on his shoulder and if you're a boy, don't put your arm around her, because it's bad manners in public.

Boys, when escorting a girl, let her go down the aisle first, following the usher. If there's no usher, the boy goes first to find seats. Help her with her coat when she is seated. Fold your own and hold it in your lap.

4-Mile C&O Spur Takes 40 Days

CLEVELAND, Nov. 17—(AP)—Chesapeake and Ohio Railway says a 4.1-mile spur track to the site of the new atomic energy plant in Pike County was completed in only 40 working days.

The $1,150,000 spur, which leaves the C. & O. mainline at Robbins, O., was started Sept. 15. More than a half million cubic yards of material were moved in construction, which included two timber trestles 43 feet high and having a combined length of 550 feet.

Foul Shopping Weather Coming

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP)—Early Christmas shoppers over most of the nation probably will have to brave showers or snow.

The Weather Bureau says days of precipitation during the next 30 days is expected to exceed normal everywhere except in the South Atlantic states and the Northern Plains. Colder than normal weather is also forecast.

Pvt. Thompson Now In Training

Pvt. Eugene Thompson, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thompson of Orient Route 1, has completed processing at the 2053d Reception Center in Fort Meade, Md., and is assigned to the 3rd Armored Division, Fort Knox, Ky., for Army basic training.

He will receive 16 weeks of basic military training necessary for all soldiers. Fundamental military subjects such as close order drill, care of clothing and equipment, first aid, scouting and patrolling, and map reading will be taught.

Individual firing of the M-1 rifle, carbine and light machine gun will be included in the battle indoctrination phase of the training.

Old Sweethearts Finally Marry

DEPAUVILLE, N. Y., Nov. 17—(AP)—A pair of childhood sweethearts have married, after each had celebrated a golden wedding anniversary with another mate.

Albert Shaw, 72, and the former Mrs. Minnie Seymour, 71, grew up together in Jefferson County. Each married and moved away. Shaw's first wife died last February and Mrs. Seymour's first husband died in 1951.

It has been estimated that the United States will reach a population of 200 million well before the end of this century.

Pvt. Eugene Thompson, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thompson of Orient Route 1, has completed processing at the 2053d Reception Center in Fort Meade, Md., and is assigned to the 3rd Armored Division, Fort Knox, Ky., for Army basic training.

He will receive 16 weeks of basic military training necessary for all soldiers. Fundamental military subjects such as close order drill, care of clothing and equipment, first aid, scouting and patrolling, and map reading will be taught.

Individual firing of the M-1 rifle, carbine and light machine gun will be included in the battle indoctrination phase of the training.

Old Sweethearts Finally Marry

DEPAUVILLE, N. Y., Nov. 17—(AP)—A pair of childhood sweethearts have married, after each had celebrated a golden wedding anniversary with another mate.

Albert Shaw, 72, and the former Mrs. Minnie Seymour, 71, grew up together in Jefferson County. Each married and moved away. Shaw's first wife died last February and Mrs. Seymour's first husband died in 1951.

It has been estimated that the United States will reach a population of 200 million well before the end of this century.

WRONG AGAIN

THE RECORD OF WASHINGTON bureaucrats is filled with many wrong guesses about the economic future, most of them designed to scare Congress into granting more government controls over prices, wages and the entire economy.

The latest was the drouth. Last August Ellis Arnall, then price stabilizer, said the drouth would cause such shortages that there would be a price disaster to citizens' purses unless stringent controls, to be administered by his bureau, were authorized. The power he sought was not granted, and since then the index of food prices has declined by more than four points.

Price rises are reported to be small even in the drouth areas hardest hit. That is because food production as a whole has been very good this year and the nation's distribution system is incomparably the best in the world.

Washington controllers have cried "wolf!" too often. There are widespread predictions that the new Congress will proceed to wipe nearly all controls off the board. They are, in fact, needless except in case of war or some disaster affecting the entire nation.

Their main function is to keep alive useless bureaus that nag at the natural operations of the national economy and reduce its dynamic efficiency.

BERMUDA LIKES OTTAWA

PEACEFUL BERMUDA, REPOSING in the warm blue seas off the Atlantic Coast of the United States, is canvassing the possibilities of union with Canada. That, said a speaker in the Bermudian parliament, is Bermuda's "proper place under the crown."

The economic and geographical ties of this small colonial possession of Great Britain are with the Western Hemisphere. Bermudians want Britain's so-called "imperial" properties there to be disposed of to the Bermudian government. When that has been accomplished, political union with Canada is proposed.

The United States, which is not concerned, could have no objection to such an arrangement. As a strategic outpost of the United States, which has leased air bases there, a union with Canada would bring even closer ties. There would be a genial triangular arrangement with Hamilton, Ottawa and Washington at the three apexes.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

I was recently among chemical engineers and instrument makers and I heard the same tale of woe of the shortage of students in the colleges in these particular skills. It is much like the shortage of nurses in all hospitals, the shortage of internes in country hospitals, the shortage of engineers, generally.

These shortages can only mean that not enough boys at college find it worth their while to go through the grind of taking professional courses and that the prospect of conscription, of interrupted studies and broken lives lessen the interest in such careers, particularly as a young man may have to delay the beginning of his career until it is too late.

This is as serious a national as a personal problem. The electrical, electronic, chemical, civil, mechanical and all sorts of other engineers as well as biologists, laboratory workers and other scientists are essential to the well-being of our citizens as well as to the conduct of any kind of war we need to fight. If no provision can be made to separate those who are fit for such studies, we may find, after a while, say in 10 years, that the United States will be forced to import sharp minds and skilled technicians from abroad to do the essential work of this nation.

Always one hears that production wins wars; that our industry can out-produce any country in the world.

Few, however, realize where modern industry begins; where it is controlled against faulty production—where it is planned and measured and guided. Without scientific laboratories and without engineers there can be no production; without them there can be no formulae even for making steel much less the chemicals that are so essential to industry. What are we to do? Bring engineers from England and chemists from Germany?

I was once talking to a mamma on this subject and she protested that in a democracy all boys should be equal and the smart boy should not be kept at college while her son is in Korea. Apparently her son is not smart, because her concept of an education was limited to fraternities, sororities, football and other by-products. She had no idea of the vast amounts of knowledge that went into the making of her nylon and the lacquer with which she covered her finger-nails. Nor did she realize the engineering and testing that has to go into her finger-nails. Nor did she realize the takes smart boys to prepare themselves to be able men who can produce such items as well as atom bombs and other instruments of destruction and defense.

Never before have we, in this country, encountered this type of shortage of manpower, nor does it exist in the country of our enemy, Soviet Russia, which boasts of the differentiation that is made there between those who go into military service and those who go into science and engineering.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

"WHAT'S it all about, Denny? Why are we still going on?"

It was Kathleen who asked, and the old-timers said that it took a trip up the river to get to know a man—or a woman. If that was so, Kathleen was standing the test. Deeply concerned as she was, she accepted things as they came, not complaining.

"This is a trip to the moon," he said gravely, and told what he had learned of their real destination. There were facts that couldn't be reconciled with mental quirks and actions that didn't fit. Up to now these had bothered Rawls' relentlessly logical mind, but they did so no longer. For himself, he'd never reach the heights of imagination to which Mark Whirter soared, but he could understand such a man.

Where there was a flash of genius there were also gaps. Generally those turned out to be weaknesses to wreck a man before he attained his goal. Few had the skill or the luck of a Hannibal.

"You mean," Kathleen asked, "that it's a trip to the moon because it's so wildly impossible?"

"Something like that," he agreed. "It's a reaching for things out of the ordinary grasp. Somebody's got to be stopped. Probably he'll stop himself by trying too hard. But he'll never quit short of death. He knows what he's up against, and from now on he'll fight harder than ever."

"You rather admire him, don't you?"

"Yes, I do. I consider him utterly, completely mistaken—but he believes in what he's doing, and deeply enough to give his life for it."

"But you don't think he can put it over?"

"I think he might, if he could control everything," Rawls said seriously. "But he's putting his trust in outlaws at the gold camps, renegades of the worst kind. I wouldn't trust them for a minute."

Kathleen nodded, and her own understanding of this man and his methods was broadened. In him was strength to match that of Mark Whirter, and in addition he had a vast patience. It could explode to terrible action on occasion, but he had a way of letting things work themselves out—at least, until the moment came to give them a nudge. She smiled at him, then swung about, startled, at the heavy tramp of feet.

Whirter stood there. Anger burned in his eyes, but with it was a sort of obscure satisfaction, as though, having been goaded to a decision, it pleased him to know that he was right in taking it.

"You're going to hate me," he said bluntly, addressing both of them. "Though I venture that you'll also like what I'm going to do. Find a good spot for anchoring."

"What's going on?" Rawls asked.

"You'll find out. Come along, both of you."

Once the two packets were at anchor, a safe distance off from shore, in a quiet backwater afforded by the lee of an island, he explained. Astrid was there, looking angry, and Whirter met her glance with a level unconcern.

"We're going to have a wedding aboard," he said bluntly. "A double wedding, in fact. It's easy to see that you and Miss Garrison are in love with each other, Rawls. Likewise, it has been understood for quite a while that Astrid and I are to marry."

"All that you want of me is to be Lomax McQuestion's son-in-law," Astrid retorted furiously. She had beard the lion in his den, and she had struck fire—a flame that frightened her now.

"I did want that, once, though it's of no importance now," Whirter replied. "You've been trying to stir up trouble—and with only four women along, and two shiploads of men, and two of the women white, it's easy to have trouble, of a sort that you might not relish."

He spoke with a cold dispassion twice as frightening as anger, gazing from one to the other.

"So I'm taking steps, as a prudent man must, to solve this woman problem. Rawls and I are ship captains, and as such we have the power to marry people. I'll marry you and Miss Garrison, Rawls. You will perform the ceremony for Astrid and myself. Now."

"I certainly have no intention of marrying you," Astrid snapped, and color burned hot in her cheeks.

She started to say more, then bit her lip and controlled her tongue. But Whirter did not let it go at that. "Why?" he prodded.

"Must you ask?" she demanded.

"It's enough that I don't care to." "If you have any serious objections, I'm willing to listen to them," he conceded. "But on the whole, I think it will be much better to do it my way, now. The others are raising no objections."

Kathleen looked at Rawls. The blood pulsed in her cheeks and throat, but her eyes were steady. Rawls turned.

"Under other conditions, we might be happy to consider it," he said, "but you go too far, Whirter. This is not a matter for force."

"Meaning that you won't?"

"That's the size of it."

"I think you will. Or would you like it better reversed—Astrid to marry Rawls, Kathleen to be my blushing bride?"

Rawls had controlled his anger up to now. But this put a strain on it that was hard to bear.

"Neither the one nor the other," he retorted. "Have you lost your mind, Whirter?"

"It'll be one or the other," Whirter growled, and his rage was an answering spark. "You and everyone else will do well to get it through your heads that I'm master here. Whatever I think is best for the expedition is what will be done. Perhaps you girls would prefer to be set ashore, instead—where you might find yourselves other lovers?"

Astrid slapped him, a stinging open-handed blow that drove the blood from his face, then sent it flooding back in the finger-marks. Whirter did not move, but his eyes were unpleasant.

"I'll remember that," he promised. "I—"

"Don't try to push us too far," Rawls warned. "There's a limit to what you can get away with."

"I'll show you whether there's any limit to what I can do!" Whirter was beside himself. "If any of you think—"

An interruption came as the door was flung open. Taber, his long face drawn in anxious lines, burst into the room. His voice was hoarse with apprehension.

"McQuestion's dead," he said.

The news of McQuestion's passing checked Whirter in mid-stride. With an effort, he resumed his normal composure and took appropriate action. But as the hours wore on it was as though a new book had been opened, an old one tossed aside. Lomax McQuestion had been owner of the Astrid and, in theory at least, the head of this expedition.

Now that restraint was removed, and the change was quickly apparent. There had been that same sense of bridges burned behind them when they'd left the Missouri and turned up the Yellowstone. But this time the feeling was stronger, and it extended to everyone. Overnight, the atmosphere grew strained and brittle.

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 — An outstanding but generally unremarked feature of the tremendous Eisenhower triumph is that he crushed the professional political machines in the great cities of the country almost as completely as he smashed Hitler's armies.

Temporarily at least, the old-fashioned bosses and their sordid system of bread-and-butter, bought-and-paid-for politics appear to have been eliminated from the American scene.

Although Tammany and its minor imitations generally supported the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket, the Illinois governor barely broke even in most of the urban centers, whose vote frequently determines the outcome in their respective states. Two decades of Roosevelt-Truman victories derived from the fact that they could rely on the cities for at least a 60 per cent veto.

Moreover, the surrounding areas, including those within or adjacent to the city limits, offset the Democratic tallies in the so-called tenement districts. Westchester and Long Island counties GOP turnout neutralized New York City's Democratic majority, just as suburban Cook County balanced Chicago's demonstration for Stevenson.

BOSSSES—It may not be accidental that erstwhile political rulers are abdicating in the wake of Eisenhower's great victory. Jake Arvey of Chicago, Stevenson's sponsor, has lost interest. Ailing Ed Flynn, Bronx boss, may retire. Paul E. Fitzpatrick, New York State chairman, has resigned.

Frank Hague of Jersey is through, although he may not realize it. Jim Curley of Boston is discredited, losing badly in the primary. Boss Crump of Memphis and the Pendergast faction were routed by the Gore and Symington primary wins in Tennessee and Missouri, respectively.

Certain historic machines in Dixie may never regain their old power as a result of internal rivalries and dissensions in the 1952 struggle.

MACHINES WRECKED—Civic reformers temper their rejoicing over this development, however, because of their recollection that a similar wreckage of the Tammany brand of politics in the early '30s was short lived. FDR and his municipal allies, notably La Guardia in New York, were opposed by these same forces in 1932 and 1936, but he eventually restored them to power.

FDR associated himself with the Curleys, O'Dwyers, Hagues, Nashes, Kelleys, Crumps and Pendergasts in building the hedge-podge and incongruous machine that fell apart on Nov.

4. He kept them at arms' length, and sneaked them into the White House through the back door, but he accepted their support and gave them his favor.

Under Truman, who boasts that he "is a politician and proud of it," the professionals had the run of Washington and the government. Almost every official convicted, indicted, suspended or fired in the "scandals of 1952" was appointed through the admitted and advertised operation of the "spoils system."

Thus there is no assurance that the mercenary, politics-for-profit and cynical era has ended permanently. American politicians are a hardy breed, and, like the Old Guard, they never surrender.

CRONIES—But there are certain hopeful aspects in the current political drama that were not present in the Rooseveltian preview of busted bossism of two decades ago. Even more important than Eisenhower's nonpolitical background and personality, there are economic and social changes of far-reaching influence.

It is significant, however, that the next President was not brought up in a political atmosphere and never hung around a ward clubhouse. In the campaign he thought of people rather than the political faithful and organizational hirelings. He has no false loyalties, and he owes no false man or group for his election. "Government by cronies" is out!

POLITICS CHANGE—In any analysis of the changing political landscape, however, credit must be given to such nonpolitical forces as industrial trends, the automobile, television, radio and shifts of population.

In short, urban decentralization is responsible. Factories have moved to urban outskirts, and their workers have followed. Once they own a home, paying real estate, school, water and other taxes, they become acutely conscious of these burdens of government, and generally conservative. Slum clearance eliminates slum politics as well as rundown tenements.

Prosperity contributes to this evolution. Political jobs once handed out by patronage dispensers cannot equal private wages and salaries. Elders now scorn clambakes, while the kids turn up their noses at strawberry and ice-cream festivals.

There is no attraction to tomorrow's voters in dingy, ill-lighted clubhouses or scheming, cigar-smoking precinct captains. The movies, the radio and television have educated them to better things, including ideals, standards, opportunities.

How Eisenhower acts in the next four—eight—years may determine whether these gains will endure!

"Yes, I do. I consider him utterly, completely mistaken—but he believes in what he's doing, and deeply enough to give his life for it."

"But you don't think he can put it over?"

"I think he might, if he could control everything," Rawls said seriously. "But he's putting his trust in outlaws at the gold camps, renegades of the worst kind. I wouldn't trust them for a minute."

Kathleen nodded, and her own understanding of this man and his methods was broadened. In him was strength to match that of Mark Whirter, and in addition he had a vast patience. It could explode to terrible action on occasion, but he had a way of letting things work themselves out—at least, until the moment came to give them a nudge. She smiled at him, then swung about, startled, at the heavy tramp of feet.

Whirter stood there. Anger burned in his eyes, but with it was a sort of obscure satisfaction, as though, having been goaded to a decision, it pleased him to know that he was right in taking it.

"You're going to hate me," he said bluntly, addressing both of them. "Though I venture that you'll also like what I'm going to do. Find a good spot for anchoring," he added.

"What's going on?" Rawls asked.

"You'll find out. Come along, both of you."

Once the two packets were at anchor, a safe distance off from shore, in a quiet backwater afforded by the lee of an island, he explained. Astrid was there, looking angry, and Whirter met her glance with a level unconcern.

"We're going to have a wedding aboard," he said bluntly. "A double wedding, in fact. It's easy to see that you and Miss Garrison are in love with each other, Rawls. Likewise, it has been understood for quite a while that Astrid and I are to marry."

"All that you want of me is to be Lomax McQuestion's son-in-law," Astrid retorted furiously. She had heaved the lion in his den, and she had struck fire—a flame that frightened her now.

"I did want that, once, though it's of no importance now," Whirter replied. "You've been trying to stir up trouble—and with only four women along, and two shiploads of men, and two of the women white, it's easy to have trouble, of a sort that you might not relish."

He spoke with a cold dispassion twice as frightening as anger, gazing from one to the other.

"So I'm taking steps, as a prudent man must, to solve this woman problem. Rawls and I are ship captains, and as such we have the power to marry people. I'll marry you and Miss Garrison, Rawls. You will perform the ceremony for Astrid and myself. Now."

"I certainly have no intention of marrying you," Astrid snapped, and color burned hot in her cheeks.

She started to say more, then bit her lip and controlled her tongue. But Whirter did not let it go at that. "Why?" he prodded.

"Must you ask?" she demanded.

"It's enough that I don't care to."

"If you have any serious objections, I'm willing to listen to them," he conceded. "But on the whole, I think it will be much better to do it my way, now. The others are raising no objections."

Kathleen looked at Rawls. The blood pulsed in her cheeks and throat, but her eyes were steady. Rawls turned.

"Under other conditions, we might be happy to consider it," he said, "but you go too far, Whirter. This is not a matter for force."

"Meaning that you won't?" "That's the size of it."

"I think you will. Or would you like it better reversed—Astrid to marry Rawls, Kathleen to be my blushing bride?"

Rawls had controlled his anger up to now. But this put a strain on it that was hard to bear.

"Neither the one nor the other," he retorted. "Have you lost your mind, Whirter?"

"It'll be one or the other," Whirter growled, and his rage was an answering spark. "You and everyone else will do well to get it through your heads that I'm master here. Whatever I think is best for the expedition is what will be done. Perhaps you girls would prefer to be set ashore, instead—where you might find yourselves other lovers?"

Astrid slapped him, a stinging open-handed blow that drove the blood from his face, then sent it flooding back in the finger-marks. Whirter did not move, but his eyes were unpleasant.

"I'll remember that," he promised. "I—"

"Don't try to push us too far," Rawls warned. "There's a limit to what you can get away with."

"I'll show you whether there's any limit to what I can do!" Whirter was beside himself. "If any of you think—"

An interruption came as the door was flung open. Taber, his long face drawn in anxious lines, burst into the room. His voice was hoarse with apprehension.

"McQuestion's dead," he said.

The news of McQuestion's passing checked Whirter in mid-stride. With an effort, he resumed his normal composure and took appropriate action. But as the hours wore on it was as though a new book had been opened, an old one tossed aside. Lomax McQuestion had been owner of the Astrid and, in theory at least, the head of this expedition.

Now that restraint was removed, and the change was quickly apparent. There had been that same sense of bridges burned behind them when they'd left the Missouri and turned up the Yellowstone. But this time the feeling was stronger, and it extended to everyone. Overnight, the atmosphere grew strained and brittle.

There is no bee with a more virulent or lasting bite than the presidential bee. Once a man gets stung by it, he's never quite the same again as long as he lives. It was Mrs. Franklin D. NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG news behind

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 — An outstanding but generally unremarked feature of the tremendous Eisenhower triumph is that he crushed the professional political machines in the great cities of the country almost as completely as he smashed Hitler's armies.

Temporarily at least, the old-fashioned bosses and their sordid system of bread-and-butter, bought-and-paid-for politics appear to have been eliminated from the American scene.

Although Tammany and its minor imitations generally supported the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket, the Illinois governor barely broke even in most of the urban centers, whose vote frequently determines the outcome in their respective states. Two decades of Roosevelt-Truman victories derived from the fact that they could rely on the cities for at least a 60 per cent veto.

Moreover, the surrounding areas, including those within or adjacent to the city limits, offset the Democratic tallies in the so-called tenement districts. Westchester and Long Island counties GOP turnout neutralized New York City's Democratic majority, just as suburban Cook County balanced Chicago's demonstration for Stevenson.

BOSSSES—It may not be accidental that erstwhile political rulers are abdicating in the wake of Eisenhower's great victory. Jake Arvey of Chicago, Stevenson's sponsor, has lost interest. Ailing Ed Flynn, Bronx boss, may retire. Paul E. Fitzpatrick, New York State chairman, has resigned.

Frank Hague of Jersey is through, although he may not realize it. Jim Curley of Boston is discredited, losing badly in the primary. Boss Crump of Memphis and the Pendergast faction were routed by the Gore and Symington primary wins in Tennessee and Missouri, respectively.

Certain historic machines in Dixie may never regain their old power as a result of internal rivalries and dissensions in the 1952 struggle.

MACHINES WRECKED—Civic reformers temper their rejoicing over this development, however, because of their recollection that a similar wreckage of the Tammany brand of politics in the early '30s was short lived. FDR and his municipal allies, notably La Guardia in New York, were opposed by these same forces in 1932 and 1936, but he eventually restored them to power.

FDR associated himself with the Curleys, O'Dwyers, Hagues, Nashes, Kelleys, Crumps and Pendergasts in building the hedge-podge and incongruous machine that fell apart on Nov.

4. He kept them at arms' length, and sneaked them into the White House through the back door, but he accepted their support and gave them his favor.

Under Truman, who boasts that he "is a politician and proud of it," the professionals had the run of Washington and the government. Almost every official convicted, indicted, suspended or fired in the "scandals of 1952" was appointed through the admitted and advertised operation of the "spoils system."

Thus there is no assurance that the mercenary, politics-for-profit and cynical era has ended permanently. American politicians are a hardy breed, and, like the Old Guard, they never surrender.

CRONIES—But there are certain hopeful aspects in the current political drama that were not present in the Rooseveltian preview of busted bossism of two decades ago. Even more important than Eisenhower's nonpolitical background and personality, there are economic and social changes of far-reaching influence.

It is significant, however, that the next President was not brought up in a political atmosphere and never hung around a ward clubhouse. In the campaign he thought of people rather than the political faithful and organization hirelings. He has no false loyalties, and he owes no single man or group for his election. "Government by cronies" is out!

POLITICS CHANGE—In any analysis of the changing political landscape, however, credit must be given to such nonpolitical forces as industrial trends, the automobile, television, radio and shifts of population.

In short, urban decentralization is responsible. Factories have moved to urban outskirts, and their workers have followed. Once they own a home, paying real estate, school, water and other taxes, they become acutely conscious of these burdens of government, and generally conservative. Slum clearance eliminates slum politics as well as rundown tenements.

Prosperity contributes to this evolution. Political jobs once handed out by patronage dispensers cannot equal private wages and salaries. Elders now scorn clambakes, while the kids turn up their noses at strawberry and ice-cream festivals.

There is no attraction to tomorrow's voters in dingy, ill-lighted clubhouses or scheming, cigar-smoking precinct captains. The movies, the radio and television have educated them to better things, including ideals, standards, opportunities.

How Eisenhower acts in the next four—eight—years may determine whether these gains will endure!

Miss Yvonne Gibson Gives Sunday Afternoon Recital

Vari Vliet Home Scene Of Program

Approximately one hundred eighty people were present Sunday afternoon for the piano recital presented by Miss Yvonne Gibson, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gibson of Circleville Route 2 in the home of her teacher, Mrs. Leon Van Vliet, 157 West High street.

Miss Gibson's program was as follows: "Sonata No. 4 in F Major," Allegro and Allegretto by Mozart; "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," Bach; "Rhapsodie Hongroise No. 6," Liszt; "Granada," Lecuona, and Cadenza to the first movement of "Concerto No. 3 C Minor, Op. 37," Beethoven-Sch Czynski.

"Beautiful Blue Danube," Strauss; "Impromptu in A Flat, Op. 29," Chopin; "Valse, Op. 70, No. 1," Chopin, and "Rhapsodie Hongroise No. 2," by Liszt.

For her encores Miss Gibson played "Malaguena" by Lecuona, and "Will o' the Wisp," by McDowell.

Charles Will of Circleville served as usher and Miss Jean Rose of Williamsport was receptionist.

Among the guests was Dr. Frank R. Meier of Columbus, teacher of piano and organ, who is Mrs. Van Vliet's teacher.

At the close of the recital, Dr. Meier commented on the ability of a 15-year-old student in memorizing and executing so difficult a program with such poise.

He said that few pianists would have endurance to play two Liszt rhapsodies on the same program, and commented on the brilliancy of her octave work in those two compositions as the high point of her performance. He also praised the fluency of her cadences.

4 Major College Teams Undefeated

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Four major colleges — Georgia Tech, Michigan State, Southern California and UCLA—head the list of 21 unbeaten and untied teams today. The weekend's action dropped two more from the dwindling list when Maryland took a beating from Mississippi and Iowa Wesleyan was downed by Buena Vista. Ten of the teams have completed their seasons including Peru (Neb.) Teachers, which heads the nation with 10 victories.

Eagles And Rams Set For Battles To Decide Conference Pennants

CLEVELAND, Nov. 17.—(P)—This is make or break week for at least two of the National Football League teams.

The Philadelphia Eagles, tied with the New York Giants for second place in the American Conference, tackle the pace-setting Browns here Sunday and need a victory to remain in the running. The Giants and Eagles trailed Paul Brown's club by a game.

The Los Angeles Rams, back on the winning trail after a poor start, play host to the San Francisco 49ers with a triumph also necessary if the defending champions are to have a chance to retain their title in the league playoff. The Rams are a game to the rear of the 49ers and the surging Detroit Lions in the National Conference.

San Francisco and Detroit each has a 6-2 record along with the Browns, who took undisputed possession of first place in the American division Sunday when the Green Bay Packers upset the New York Giants, 17-3.

THE DEFEAT dropped the Giants into a tie for second place with the Philadelphia Eagles, who beat the slipping Chicago Cardinals 10-7, by cashing in on two fumbles recovered by veteran end Pete Pihos.

The Browns remained at the top of their division by the narrow margin of one point, a 29-28 decision over the Pittsburgh Steelers in a game in which three league marks were established.

The 49ers also had a close call before downing Washington's Redskins, 23-17, but the Lions romped to a 43-13 verdict over the orphan Dallas Texans.

The Rams turned the National Conference into a four-team affair by passing the Chicago Bears crazy, 40-24.

Lou Groza set two of the league records in the Browns' Steelers game. He booted two fieldgoals to run his seasonal output to 14, one more than his own mark. He also kicked three extra points to run his total for the year to 22 and his consecutive string record to 94.

With Otto Graham tossing the ball for two touchdowns to lead the Browns' to victory and Jim Finks completing four touchdown heaves, the two clubs attempted 89 passes, one more than the record set by Washington and Los Angeles in 1949.

COACH BROWN was anything but elated over his win over the supposedly weak Steelers.

"Brother, they're rough," he said of the Steelers. But then he added: "Our secondary fell apart."

He had all kinds of proof for that. The Browns held a 22-0 lead in the third period but then wilted as Steeler quarterback Jimmy Finks pitched strikes for four Pittsburgh touchdowns.

"It might have been different with Tommy James in there, but how about Lahr? Elbie Nickel had a field day with him," the Cleveland coach said.

Rex Bumgardner, an offensive specialist, replaced the injured James and Ray Mathews nabbed 33 and 39-yard touchdown passes over his guarding.

Nickel caught a nine-yard pass over Warren Lahr for another Steeler tally. The other scoring pass, good for six yards, went to Jack Butler.

A 69-yard lateral-pass set up Butler's tally. Finks pitched out

First Day Of Hunting Is 'Spotty'

Saturday's opening day of the 1952 hunting season brought beaming smiles of success to the faces of many who trooped into the fields.

Many others left local fields with sour looks, however, complaining of lack of game.

And many others retreated from the fields after being tagged by the law for hunting and trespassing violations.

As anticipated, pheasants and rabbits were found only in "spotty" quantities during opening day, few hunters boasting their limits before 10 a. m., as they have in seasons past.

MANY HUNTERS had not bagged their two birds and four rabbits even by noon, while a great number never did succeed in making their limits.

And, as in recent years, the farmer-hunter relations became even more strained in some cases, relaxing in others.

Farmers and hunters alike complain of "too many hunters," the farmers because their lands are subject to hordes of gun-toting men and the hunters because they must sometimes line up nine or 10 abreast and brave the flying buckshot.

Circleville's early Saturday resembled an armed camp with the streets lined with khaki-garbed men getting their breakfasts and supplies before taking to the fields.

After the first day of shooting, pheasants and rabbits are expected to be hard to find. The pheasant season continues through Nov. 30, while rabbit season will remain open through Jan. 1.

Sokolsky's These Days

The selection of smart boys needs, of course, to be a rigid one, lest the politicians sell exemptions from conscription to dopes, morons and idiots. That is always possible if the tests are not stiff enough and high grades not hard enough to get. Yet, there can be no mistaking the boy who is a chemist or a physicist, the biologist or the engineer. He is born that way and takes, to it in his youngest years. Just as a genius on the piano or the violin usually discovers skill before papa or mamma can point with pride, so the smart boys show their competence in the earliest years at school.

I know a boy who when he was twelve could explain atomic fission with sufficient intelligence and accuracy to interest a specialist in the field. It is possible to catch these young fellows at an early age, to cultivate their gifts and to give them a push in the right direction where they can be most useful to the country.

The military politicians are afraid of this whole proposition because whenever they have to make deferment categories there is an outcry from parents which is reflected in Congress. However, the present shortage, with definite indications of a bleaker future, requires immediate thought and action. Every year that is lost means shortages seven or eight years later which cannot at that time be repaired.

List Thinned To 36; First Tilt Nov. 26

Circleville high school's 1952 basketball squad was thinned down to about "fighting" size Monday by beginning the third week of practice.

William "Red" Courtney, beginning his first year here this season with Tiger courtmen, said the 52-man squad which reported on opening day of practice has been cut down to 36 now.

And only little more than a week separates the CHS team from its opening game Nov. 26 at Chillicothe.

Height, or the lack of it, is expected to be the biggest problem facing Courtney. The six-foot mark is expected to be sacrificed here this season for speed and shooting ability.

Reason, of course, is the lack of six-footers. Tigers seeking varsity slots scale from about 5'5" up to only about the 6' top.

Circleville's first test under fire this season is expected Wednesday afternoon, when they will play host to invading East eagles of Columbus in a practice session.

Names of Tiger hopefuls seeking spots on the varsity and reserve team are as follows:

Bill Barthelmas, Jay Curry, Fred Davis, Tom Elsea, Dave Greeno, Joe Hill, Roy Huffer, Robin Jones, Mike Rooney, Don Skinner, Gene Stonerock, Terry Stonerock, Tom

Missouri Back Is Top Scorer

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(P)—Al Conway of William Jewell (Mo.) has regained his position as collegiate football's leading scorer with 121 points.

The hard-running halfback topped the list two weeks ago, but dropped to second last week. On Friday night he went on a scoring rampage as his team walloped Central (Mo.), 46-19. Conway tallied four touchdowns and an extra point to give him a season's total of 20 touchdowns and one extra point in 10 games. Mac Moore of Sam Houston State is second with 110 points and Jack Parker of Mississippi State ranks third with 106 points.

Fuzzy Faust Quits As Grid Coach

DAYTON, Nov. 17.—(P)—Dayton Chamade, high school's highly successful football coach, Gerard (Fuzzy) Faust, retired Sunday with a 20-year record of 115 victories, 46 defeats and 10 ties.

The 45-year-old mentor made the announcement to his players in the dressing room at halftime of Sunday's game against Cincinnati Purcell. His boys were trailing 14-7 at the time. They came back to tie Purcell 27-27.

The 49ers also had a close call before downing Washington's Redskins, 23-17, but the Lions romped to a 43-13 verdict over the orphan Dallas Texans.

The Rams turned the National Conference into a four-team affair by passing the Chicago Bears 43-40.

Lou Groza set two of the league records in the Browns - Steelers game. He booted two fieldgoals to run his seasonal output to 14, one more than his own mark. He also kicked three extra points to run his total for the year to 22 and his consecutive string record to 94.

With Otto Graham tossing the ball for two touchdowns to lead the Browns' to victory and Jim Finks completing four touchdown heaves, the two clubs attempted 89 passes, one more than the record set by Washington and Los Angeles in 1949.

COACH BROWN was anything but elated over his win over the supposedly weak Steelers.

"Brother, they're rough," he said of the Steelers. But then he added: "Our secondary fell apart."

He had all kinds of proof for that. The Browns held a 22-0 lead in the third period but then wilted as Steeler quarterback Jimmy Finks pitched strikes for four Pittsburgh touchdowns.

"It might have been different with Tommy James in there, but how about Lahr? Elbie Nickel had a field day with him," the Cleveland coach said.

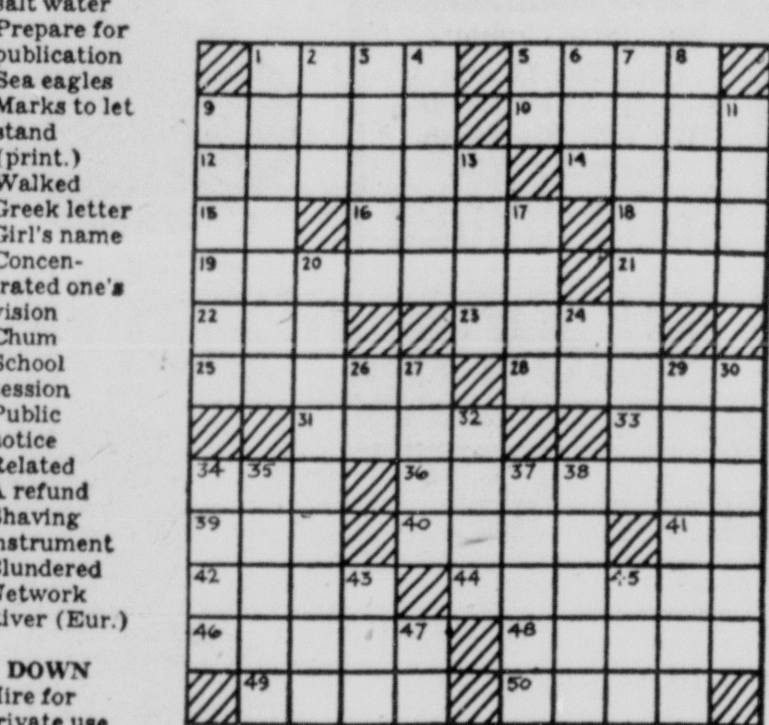

Rex Bumgardner, an offensive specialist, replaced the injured James and Ray Mathews nabbed 33 and 39-yard touchdown passes over his guarding.

Nickel caught a nine-yard pass over Warren Lahr for another Steeler tally. The other scoring pass, good for six yards, went to Jack Butler.

A 69-yard lateral-and-pass set up Butler's tally. Finks pitched out to

First Day Of Hunting Is 'Spotty'

Saturday's opening day of the 1952 hunting season brought beaming smiles of success to the faces of many who trooped into the fields.

Many others left local fields with sour looks, however, complaining of lack of game.

And many others retreated from the fields after being tagged by the law for hunting and trespassing violations.

As anticipated, pheasants and rabbits were found only in "spotty" quantities during opening day, few hunters boasting their limits before 10 a. m., as they have in seasons past.

MANY HUNTERS had not bagged their two birds and four rabbits even by noon, while a great number never did succeed in making their limits.

And, as in recent years, the farmer-hunter relations became even more strained in some cases, relaxing in others.

Farmers and hunters alike complain of "too many hunters," the farmers because their lands are subject to hordes of gun-toting men and the hunters because they must sometimes line up nine or 10 abreast and brave the flying buckshot.

Circleville early Saturday resembled an armed camp with the streets lined with khaki-clad men getting their breakfasts and supplies before taking to the fields.

After the first day of shooting, pheasants and rabbits are expected to be hard to find. The pheasant season continues through Nov. 30, while rabbit season will remain open through Jan. 1.

Sokolosky's These Days

The selection of smart boys needs, of course, to be a rigid one, lest the politicians sell exemptions from conscription to dopes, morons and idiots. That is always possible if the tests are not stiff enough and high grades not hard enough to get. Yet, there can be no mistaking the boy who is a chemist or a physicist, the biologist or the engineer. He is born that way and takes, to it in his youngest years. Just as a genius on the piano or the violin usually discovers skill before papa or mamma can point with pride, so the smart boys show their competence in the earliest years at school.

I know a boy who when he was twelve could explain atomic fission with sufficient intelligence and accuracy to interest a specialist in the field. It is possible to catch these young fellows at an early age, to cultivate their gifts and to give them a push in the right direction where they can be most useful to the country.

The military politicians are afraid of this whole proposition because whenever they have to make deferment categories there is an outcry from parents which is reflected in Congress. However, the present shortage, with definite indications of a bleaker future, requires immediate thought and action. Every year that is lost means shortages even or eight years later which cannot at that time be repaired.

List Thinned To 36; First Tilt Nov. 26

Circleville high school's 1952 basketball squad was thinned down to about "fighting" size Monday beginning the third week of practice.

William "Red" Courtney, beginning his first year here this season with Tiger courtmen, said the 52-man squad which reported on opening day of practice has been cut down to 36 now.

And only little more than a week separates the CHS team from its opening game Nov. 26 at Chillicothe.

Height, or the lack of it, is expected to be the biggest problem facing Courtney. The six-foot mark is expected to be sacrificed here this season for speed and shooting ability.

Reason, of course, is the lack of six-footers. Tigers seeking varsity slots scale from about 5'5" up to only about the 6' top.

Circleville's first test under fire this season is expected Wednesday afternoon, when they will play host to invading East eagles of Columbus in a practice session.

Names of Tiger hopefuls seeking spots on the varsity and reserve team are as follows:

- Bill Barthelmas, Jay Curry, Fred Davis, Tom Elser, Dave Greeno, Joe Hill, Roy Huffer, Robin Jones, Mike Rooney, Don Skinner, Gene Stonerock, Terry Stonerock, Tom Steele and Don Strawser.

Missouri Back Is Top Scorer

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(P)—Al Conway of William Jewell (Mo.) has regained his position as college football's leading scorer with 121 points.

The hard-running halfback topped the list two weeks ago, but dropped to second last week. On Friday night he went on a scoring rampage as his team walloped Central (Mo.), 46-19. Conway tallied four touchdowns and an extra point to give him a season's total of 20 touchdowns and one extra point in 10 games. Mac Moore of Sam Houston State is second with 110 points and Jack Parker of Mississippi State ranks third with 106 points.

Fuzzy Faust Quits As Grid Coach

DAYTON, Nov. 17.—(P)—Dayton Chaminade high school's highly successful football coach, Gerard

(Fuzzy) Faust, retired Sunday with a 20-year record of 115 victories, 46 defeats and 10 ties.

The 45-year-old mentor made the announcement to his players in the dressing room at halftime of Sunday's game against Cincinnati Purcell. His boys were trailing 14-7 at the time. They came back to tie Purcell 27-27.

District's Turkey Carvers Told How To Dodge Annual Duty

Polite Method Also Outlined For Experts

Slackers And Bluffs Warned Of Perils On Thanksgiving

By ED McCANN
Herald Staff Writer

"Don't let turkey carving embarrass you," a current periodical says. "All you have to do is learn how to do the job right."

This obviously is a brazen bit of lure—laid out to catch unwary husbands from New Holland to Nashville. Every year around this time somebody who wants to start something comes out with a set of rules on how to get a step-over arm-bar and a double-wing back on the Thanksgiving bird.

And every year the honest men of the earth arise again to beat down the propaganda. So be it! And let's be for the beating down, fellas!

Stop any man along the leaf-piled curbs of Derby, the bypass at Yellowbud, the hot corner at Leistville or anywhere else in the district and he'll tell you the truth. There are three systems when it comes to carving the turkey, and any one of them can embarrass you—no matter how well you learn the job!

TURKEY CARVERS are of three types: the slackers, the bluffs, and the professionals. Now first, the slacker.

This is perhaps the easiest system of all the carving methods since it requires merely a fair excuse at the right moment. All that's necessary is to watch for the moment when some loud-mouth shouts:

"Who wants to carve?"

Then you run out the back door for (1) ice cream at the corner store, (2) a cup of sugar at the neighbor's, or (3) a sudden opportunity to show the plum pudding to any passing pedestrian.

Those who favor this third choice are cautioned first to make certain the screen door has been removed for the winter, or at least that it is unhitched at the moment.

(That July morning when Uncle Cris pretended to "run away with the birthday cake," just for laughs, has always been a tragic memory. It's much too late now to argue over who hooked the screen without Cris knowing it, but all over the neighborhood they still talk about the cake that was baked first and then screened in one piece.)

Done with any degree of caution, there's nothing complicated about the slacker carving method. Merely stay out of sight for the required interval and then come back in, breathless, to ask:

"Am I too late to carve the bird?"

THIS QUESTION should be asked in a low voice and at a safe distance from the table, lest the guy who took the rap arise and lay a drumstick on your brow.

Second, let us consider the bluff. This is a much more difficult role, but when handled with skill it can be effective. He doesn't know any more about carving a turkey than he does a tonsillectomy, but he won't admit it and hence must use certain bits of strategy to avoid throwing the dinner table into chaos.

There are cases on record in which a clumsy bluff effort ended with the wife's relatives in tears, the kids hiding under the table and rival grandfathers dueling over the candle center-piece, a la Jeb Stuart's cavalry.

The trained bluff, at the instant he starts to carve (wow, what a slaughter), will always distract the attention of everyone at the table from the job on hand. This can be done in various ways—perhaps by shouting the furnace is smoking, asking whether an absent cousin has secured her divorce, or just stepping back and asking:

"Who wants white meat?"

While innocent on the surface, this is an old trick question designed to stir unrest, indecision and argument. It is also a highly dangerous maneuver when the bluff hasn't the slightest idea where the white meat can be found.

If used, however, the carving should begin immediately and proceed rapidly without regard for any replies received. Bluff carvers in general are of three schools:

(a) THE DEEP shaft miner. He stabs straight down and trusts to luck he can cut through at the foundation. When successful this invariably dislodges an impressive piece of the bird with partial skeleton intact. However, in cases of failure, the person to the carver's right may have to be asked to pull the bird one way while the knife is pulled the other.

The deep carver must also remember the risk of drilling too deep. It is said a South Bloomfield father, using this method vigorously during an in-law dinner-table argument, was startled to find he was bringing up pieces of blue thread. He had gone through to the table cloth!

(b) The strip-mine specialist. He merely begins a series of fast slicing movements in the manner of a chop hitter trying to put one down the foul line. He aims at an angle toward any spot on the bird and lets the chips fall where they can be fielded on first bounce.

This gets the job done quickly but also frequently results in slices you can spit through. Long-range planners rarely use it.

(c) The catch-as-catch-can artist. This man, the boldest of the bluffs, depends almost entirely on surprise and confusion while he slashes at random and frequently with wide swings. However, it has advantages inasmuch as all those in the immediate vicinity retreat to the next room until called back to eat and hence are not able to give advice.

Under no circumstances whatsoever should a turkey carver take advice. If helpful souls persist, the suggestion is to start one plateful around the table to the left and another one around the circuit to the right. This is sure to cause no end of excitement directly across the table and can give the guy a chance to hold the bird with one hand while sawing with the other.

LASTLY, WE come to the professional carver—the wise guy who assures you he'll give you white meat and then sends around a veritable section. The current issue of Successful Farming magazine describes his "correct way" as follows:

First, remove the wing tip and the first joint. Hold the wing tip firmly in place between your fingers. Lift the tip up and cut between the first and second joints. Next, remove the drumstick and lift it up and away from the body of the turkey. Disjoint it from the thigh or the second joint of the leg. The second joint is left attached to the bird. Remove the thighbone after anchoring the bird where it is most convenient to steady the turkey.

Slice the white meat and begin at the front end of the turkey and slice until the left wing socket is exposed. Remove the second joint of the wing and continue slicing the white meat until the second joint of the breastbone has been reached.

Remove the stuffing and slit the thin tissue in the thigh region with the tip of the knife. Make an opening large enough for a serving spoon. The stuffing in the breast can be served by laying the skin back on the platter.

That, men, is the way the magazine describes the Emily Post method when you stand up with the knife to do your bit on Turkey Day and ignore the whisper:

"The clumsy idiot! Watch him stab himself!"

It may or may not be effective, but one final warning should be added to that stage when you "make an opening large" enough, etc." All the proven systems recommended that you peer closely inside the bird before spooning out the stuffing.

After all, there was a case in which Aunt Martha forgot one of the dishcloths and the Thanksgiving bill from the butcher shop!

FLASHLIGHT RIBBON traces part of the path taken in a routine nighttime inspection at a Texas Eastern compressor station. Every piece of equipment is examined day and night to insure efficient and safe operation.

This unusual time exposure shows Floyd Phillips, chief engineer at Waynesburg, Pa. station, as he makes regular inspection of pipelines, valves, metering station, and other equipment.

TEXAS EASTERNERS REGULARLY DOUBLE CHECK PIPELINE FACILITIES IN PICKAWAY COUNTY

The newest methods and instruments are used near this community by Texas Eastern inspectors as the Company keeps pipelines and compressor stations in top condition.

Pipeline inspection is a never-ceasing procedure. In low-flying airplanes, inspectors patrol the lines every week. On an hourly schedule, trained men tour compressor stations, examining engines, valves, scrubbers, pipe, and other equipment.

Traveling engineers using special instruments are on constant duty inspecting the pipelines to help keep the Texas Eastern system in efficient, safe operating condition.

Reliability of gas deliveries is so essential that no phase of operations is overlooked in the constant inspection and maintenance program which assures dependable service to gas distributors and consumers.

CHECKING THE FLOW of electrical current along the pipeline is the job of William Lambert. His duty is to see that anticorrosion methods used by Texas Eastern are constantly effective. This voltmeter test is made every quarter of a mile along the Company's pipeline system, as well as at every river and road crossing.

MOBILE RADIO EQUIPMENT plays a big role in keeping Texas Eastern's 4200 mile pipeline system in top operating condition. Typical use is the instantaneous reporting from remote localities of on-the-spot inspections of the pipeline right-of-way.

Under no circumstances whatsoever should a turkey carver take advice. If helpful souls persist, the suggestion is to start one plateful around the table to the left and another one around the circuit to the right. This is sure to cause no end of excitement directly across the table and can give the guy a chance to hold the bird with one hand while sawing with the other.

LASTLY, WE come to the professional carver—the wise guy who assures you he'll give you white meat and then sends around a vertebrae section. The current issue of Successful Farming magazine describes his "correct way" as follows:

First, remove the wing tip and the first joint. Hold the wing tip firmly in place between your fingers. Lift the tip up and cut between the first and second joints. Next, remove the drumstick and lift it up and away from the body of the turkey. Disjoint it from the thigh or the second joint of the leg. The second joint is left attached to the bird. Remove the thighbone after anchoring the bird where it is most convenient to steady the turkey.

Slice the white meat and begin at the front end of the turkey and slice until the left wing socket is exposed. Remove the second joint of the wing and continue slicing the white meat until the second joint of the breastbone has been reached.

Remove the stuffing and slit the thin tissue in the thigh region with the tip of the knife. Make an opening large enough for a serving spoon. The stuffing in the breast can be served by laying the skin back on the platter.

That, men, is the way the magazine describes the Emily Post method when you stand up with the knife to do your bit on Turkey Day and ignore the whisper:

"The clumsy idiot! Watch him stab himself!"

It may or may not be effective, but one final warning should be added to that stage when you "make an opening large" enough,

FLASHLIGHT RIBBON traces part of the path taken in a routine nighttime inspection at a Texas Eastern compressor station. Every piece of equipment is examined day and night to insure efficient and safe operation.

This unusual time exposure shows Floyd Phillips, chief engineer at Waynesburg, Pa. station, as he makes regular inspection of pipelines, valves, metering station, and other equipment.

TEXAS EASTERNERS REGULARLY DOUBLE CHECK PIPELINE FACILITIES IN PICKAWAY COUNTY

The newest methods and instruments are used near this community by Texas Eastern inspectors as the Company keeps pipelines and compressor stations in top condition.

Pipeline inspection is a never-ceasing procedure. In low-flying airplanes, inspectors patrol the lines every week. On an hourly schedule, trained men tour compressor stations, examining engines, valves, scrubbers, pipe, and other equipment.

Traveling engineers using special instruments are on constant duty inspecting the pipelines to help keep the Texas Eastern system in efficient, safe operating condition.

Reliability of gas deliveries is so essential that no phase of operations is overlooked in the constant inspection and maintenance program which assures dependable service to gas distributors and consumers.

CHECKING THE FLOW of electrical current along the pipeline is the job of William Lambert. His duty is to see that anticorrosion methods used by Texas Eastern are constantly effective. This voltmeter test is made every quarter of a mile along the Company's pipeline system, as well as at every river and road crossing.

MOBILE RADIO EQUIPMENT plays a big role in keeping Texas Eastern's 4200 mile pipeline system in top operating condition. Typical use is the instantaneous reporting from remote localities of on-the-spot inspections of the pipeline right-of-way.
